

Dr Farrukh Shah, Consultant haematologist, expert in management of thalassaemia syndromes, transfusion and non-transfusion dependent and has a specialist interest in management of iron overload. Dr Farrukh runs joint clinics with the diabetes team and has a good grasp of endocrine complications affecting patients with iron overload. He looks after patients with sickle cell disease and other rare inherited anaemias as part of his routine practice.